THE BECK-MEAD SHOOT. Indiana's Champion Defeated at 100 Live

Pigeons by a Score of 94 to 97. Special to the Indianapolis Journal. St. Louis, July 12.-This afternoon, at Brotherhood Park, George C. Beck, of Indianapolis, was defeated by J. L. Mead, of this city, in live-bird shooting-match. The score was 97 to 94. The contestants are two of the best wing shots in the country, and Mr. Beck has twice defeated Fred Erb. of Lafayette, Ind., this year for the cup offered by the American Field. Mr. Mead is one of the best match-shooters in the country when in condition. The match was for $100 a side at one hundred live pigeons. American Field cup rules to govern. A large number of onlookers attended. J. A. R. Elliott, of Kansas City, acted as referee. Mr. Beck had by far the hardest lot of birds, they averaging 35 per cent. harder than those allotted to Mr. Mead. The latter used his second barrel thirty times, missing the sixty-first, eighty-fourth and ninety-first birds. Mr. Beck used his second barrel thirty-two times, and missed the ninth, twenty-seventh, thirty-first, thirty-third and thirty-sixth birds. Score:

In spite of the fact that he was defeated George Beck did some wonderful work with the gun at St. Louis yesterday, his run of 64 being one of the best on record in a live-bird shoot. His opponent, Jack Winston, known as "Mead," lives at Washington, Ind., and travels for a St. Louis pottery-house. LAST WEEK'S WORK OF BALL CLUBS

The League Getting Much the Best of the Brotherhood in Point of Attendance. It has been a great week for the League, the aggregate attendance having been double that of the Brotherhood, whose or gans are painfully silent on the subject. Earlier in the season, when the Brotherhood clubs were outdrawing the League, these papers couldn't dilate at sufficient length on the fact; but now that the shoe is on the other foot they have nothing to say. The Brotherhood attendance has fallen off rapidly and heavily. At Boston, which was regarded as the strongest city of the new organization, the League games are drawing four and five times as many people. At Brooklyn the difference in the crowds is still greater, and while the Brotherhood game there yesterday drew only six hundred people, the League had over six thousand. At Phila-delphia it is the same story, the League playing to more than double the Brotherhood attendance. At New York probably because of the weak attraction-Pittsburg-the League people had the worst of it, the Brotherhood outdrawing them largely. It looks very much as though the Brotherhood had struck the toboggan and that the parent organization was about to reap its reward. The fight for the League pennant continues that it is anybody's flag as yet, that is, anybody's but New York, Cleveland and Pittsburg. Alas that proud New York should be classed with the two last-named weaklings. If Mutrie's men intend getting into the race they must be doing so pretty soon or it will be too late. It has been a disastrous week for the Cincinnatis, who have lost five games out of six and dropped the lead. Brooklyn is now in front, with Philadelphia pushing Cincinnati hard for second place. Boston is a strong fourth, while Chicago is still in it. Boston retains the advantage in the Brotherhood race, and the week's results have increased her lead and pretty well scattered the other clubs. Pittsburg isn't likely to cut much of a figure from now on,

Good Playing at Athletic Park. The fact that the Meridians led the News a few points, and that the rivalry between the two teams was at fever heat, drew five bundred people to Y. M. C. A. The defeated team changed pitchers frequently, but the News managed to hit them all rather freely. In addition, the victors played a good fielding game, while the Meridians were ragged in their work.

A Hennery Burned. An alarm sent in by the tower-man, at 11:30 o'clock last night, sent the department to No. 9 Madison street, where a large chicken-house was in flames. It was the property of Alvin A. Dorsey, chichen-raiser, and contained two hundred grown chickens, a large quantity of feed and a brooder. Nething was saved, and Mr. Dorsey places his loss at $400; insured for $200 in the Fireman's company. The fire must have been incendiary, as Mr. Dorsey had scarcely been home half an hour, when the crackling of the flames aroused the ladies of the family.

TWO CHANCES OF ESCAPE.

Cook of the John Brown Party Rejected Official Acquiescence in Stealing from Jail.

A number of persons were talking, the other day, in a hotel lobby, when the conversation turned upon the John Brown raid and his capture of Harper's Ferry with a force of twenty-two men. "John E Cook," remarked one of the talkers, "was, I suppose you know, the brother-in-law of the late Ashbel P. Willard, at that time Governor of the State of Indiana, and one of the most brilliant Democratic orators of his day. I believe I have a page of history in connection with Cook that is not generally known. He had two opportunities for escape, both of which he threw away. The first was detailed years ago by Owen Brown, a son of old John Brown, who did succeed in escaping from the ferry, but the second has never, I think, been

"Cook was as wild and reckless a man as ever lived," continued the relator, "an utter stranger to fear. Before he had reached twenty-one he declared himself tired of life and ready to die. He it was who greatly assisted Brown in preparing

Board of Tra the outlines of his campaign in Virginia. He went to the neighborhood of Harper's Ferry and taught school there for a year preceding the raid. While there he married a young girl, who, never until his arrest, suspected him of any connection with the conspiracy. She is still living, having remarried, but the whereabouts of Cook's son, the counterpart of his father in form, feature and especially in reckless and adventurous spirit, are unknown. When not yet out of his teens he disappeared and whatever became of him nobody knows.

"John Brown's son Owen was not in the fight at Harper's Ferry, having been left about five miles away to guard some provisions. He was of the same coolness and indomitable spirit of his father, but when he heard the firing at the Ferry he surmised that there had been a failure of the plan. He started, with a companion, toward the Ferry, and had not proceeded far until they met Cook and, a little later, another and the resident of the plan. other one of the raiders. Owen Brown's party then consisted of himself, Tidd, Merwas hanged, and John E. Cook. Owen resolved to make his way out of Virginia through Maryland into Pennsylvania, and thence into Canada, and proposed to do so by keeping in the mountains and crossing the Cumberland and Allegheny ranges. The attack on the Ferry took place Oct. 16, 1859, and the sufferings of these escaping men in the early winter, gnawed by hunger and pierced by cold, were intense. Cook was the most troublesome man of the party. He was continually talking about food and desiring to use his revolver on game. He was a wonderful marksman, and it was with difficulty that he was restrained from shooting. It was his anxiety to get food that brought about his capture. They knew the country was all astir, for on the mountain roads several parties of armed men had passed by their hiding-places, and they had heard dogs barking as if on their trail, and they had also seen watchfires. Cook left the party and came upon a couple of men in a clearing, chopping wood. He told them he belonged to a hunting ington street, Monday, July 14, at 2 p. m. Services party, and asked where he could buy something to eat. They appeared friendly and offered to show him the way, but at a signal they rushed upon him and pinioned his arms. He was then taken to Chambersburg, fifteen miles from his place of capture, near a village called Old Forge, and put in jail. The other four, after great hardships, came to Chambersburg, always traveling by night, and were concealed in the suburbs, when they heard the music of the band that headed the escort that took poor Cook from the jail to the train, to be taken to Charlestown. Of course, at that time they did not know the meaning of the music, or that Cook had been captured. The others all succeeded in making their

"The second opportunity of escape," the narrator said. "offered to Cook was while he was a prisoner in the jail at Charlestown. Hon. Daniel W. Voorhees, then a young and brilliant lawyer, was sent by Governor Willard not only to defend his brother-in-law, young Cook, but on a secret mission to arrange with Governor Wise, of Virginia, for the escape of the young man that his sister, Governor Willard's wife, might be spared the anguish of his execution. Now it may be that Senator Voorhees will not fully accept this narrative, but he will not deny it. Governor Wise acquiesced in the proposition to allow Cook to escape, and the prisoner was informed of the arrange-ment that had been entered into. At first he seemed inclined to accept, but on reconsideration he refused unless his companions should be given like opportunity for their lives. No amount of pleading or argument could move him from that position, and he remained to be hanged with his compan-

Discussion on Birds Proposed.

It is expected there will be a large attendance of ornithologists from all parts of the United States at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, to be held in this city on the week beginning on Aug. 19. At the side meeting of the ornithologists it is designed to have a certain amount of instructive entertainment, and to insure this the Indiana Academy of Science has issued a circular recommending that a representative from each State named lead in discussing the life history of some bird. The following assignments have been made: Wisconsin, the bobolink; Ohio, the cow-bird; Kansas, the yellow-headed black-bird; Illinois, the red-winged black-bird; Iowa, the meadow-lark; Nebraska, the Western meadow-lark; Missouri, the orchard oriole; Indiana, the Baltimore oriole; Minnesota, the rusty black-bird; the Dakotas, Brewer's blackbird; Michigan, the bronzed grackle. The circular is signed by B. W. Evermann, of Terre Haute, and A. W. Butler, of Brook-

Must Wait the Driver's Pleasure. As an instance of the spirit of independence which pervades the system of every employe of an ice company it is only necessary to relate a little incident that happened last evening. One of the wagons of a leading company was late getting round to a number of customers, one of whom had been compelled, some hours before, to lay in a supply elsewhere. When informed of the fact and asked to deliver hereafter in the forenoon the helper carried the ice back to the wagon, and was saluted by the driver with: "What's the matter?" "We're late, and they had to get ice of another wagon. They want us to get here in the morning after this," was the answer. "Well, you bet your life," said the driver,

"they'll get their ice when we're ready to bring it, and not before."

A Snake Among Bananas. H. Glick keeps a stand at the East Market and deals in various tropical fruits. On last Monday he hung up a number of bunches of bananas to ripen and last evening reached up to pull off a banana from one of these bunches. As he did so the red throat and forked tongue of a fanged serpent was thrust at his hand, which he withdrew barely in time to escape being bitten. There was almost a panic for a minute or more, but the serpent, which was nearly two feet in length, was dispatched with clubs and exhibited for the remainder of the evening to throngs of curious gazers. The snake is spotted and, without doubt. poisonous, but no one knew the species to which it belonged.

Captured the Witness.

Detective Gerber returned from Frankfort, Ind., last night, with Dora Cannon, the principal witness in the case of Jeff Dillard, charged with robbery, which comes up in the Criminal Court to-morrow. It is said the woman was paid to leave the city, and had she not been produced in court to-morrow her bond of $500 would have been declared forfeited. Attorney O. B. Orton was on her bond for that amount, and was pretty badly scared for fear detective Gerber would fail to find her. She was placed in jail, and will be kept there until the Dillard case is disposed of.
